

Einstein-Cardozo MASTER OF SCIENCE IN BIOETHICS

Learn how law and medicine can improve patients' lives

This unique graduate program could be right for YOU.

The Einstein-Cardozo Master of Science in Bioethics is a collaboration among Yeshiva University's Albert Einstein College of Medicine and Cardozo Law, and Montefiore Medical Center. This interdisciplinary program attracts lawyers, law students, and health professionals passionate about informed decision-making.

"Lawyers who serve as healthcare counsel are interested in our program. Mediation is an important skill, but when generally taught, the healthcare piece is missing. We teach lawyers about the complex healthcare environment so they can help patients and families get the best medical care."

Tia Powell, M.D.

Director, Einstein-Cardozo Master of Science in Bioethics
Director, Montefiore-Einstein Center for Bioethics

The master's program—which can be completed on a part-time or full-time basis—combines bioethics with medical and legal approaches and a strong narrative component. We help students understand how to promote ethical decision-making in healthcare.

Advance Your Legal Career: Specialize in Bioethics

The Einstein-Cardozo Master of Science in Bioethics Applications for 2012 now being accepted.

Learn more: einsteinbioethics.com/nylj

